As a 4th grade teacher, sharing with K-1 teachers took a lot of time to explain and then they didn't really have many suggestions to warrant that time spent. It was hard for me to focus on other projects and then try to regain my momentum for my own project.
5. What would you like to learn more about or do in the future regarding PBL? *

Have an expert sit with our group more and give suggestions for improvement.

   Though I loved hearing all of the projects and information from all grade levels, I would love to have more at my specific projects and info for my grade level
5. What would you like to learn more about or do in the future regarding PBL? *

I would love to have access to shared projects with other schools at my grade level.

6. If you had to teach your PBL unit next week, what would you still need to accomplish or know how to do in order to feel successful?

I feel good about the project itself and adding and adjusting my lessons around the needs of the students and integrating curriculum within the project. I feel most anxious about aligning the learning standards to the project.

Although I thoroughly enjoyed the workshop, I felt that the guest speakers and other materials were geared more towards the intermediate grades. I think it would be beneficial to have primary teachers talk about how they launch a project especially so early in the school year when you're also working on establishing and cultivating culture (as well as basic how-to's such as lining up, etc, for kindergarteners).

5. What would you like to learn more about or do in the future regarding PBL? *

I'm excited to develop more PBL's with my team!

Have more time with each group to sit down and offer suggestions and feedback. Possibly less time or no time on Thursday to gallery walk for all lessons as it’d be great having more tie to work on projects. I did love having time to get feedback/suggestions from other breakout groups however.

5. What would you like to learn more about or do in the future regarding PBL? *

Just needing more practice/confidence with essential questions for projects... and work with various assessments for different types of projects.....

Right now I’m comfortable with our project, but will still tweak it with teammate as we’re about to teach it in October.

It would have been helpful to have a "field trip" of the NTN template form we had to use to complete our project...it was a bit overwhelming and promoted confusion and frustration within our group. Can it be simplified?

6. If you had to teach your PBL unit next week, what would you still need to accomplish or know how to do in order to feel successful?

Besides more time (although our team accomplished soooo much), just all the unknown factors that will occur with our kindergartners...we must be ready to make adjustments whenever necessary..."go with the flow" but maintain the essentials.

2. How satisfied were you with the content of this workshop? *
   - Not at all satisfied
   - 1 2 3 4 5
   - Very satisfied

3. How satisfied were you with the organization of this workshop? *
   - Not at all satisfied
   - 1 2 3 4 5
   - Very satisfied
4. Please explain how we can improve this workshop for future participants like you.*

- Have students stay for the launch to give feedback
- One thing that was difficult was to get feedback on the launch and then not have any time to implement it. Our team of three got different feedback on the launch, so we needed time to come back together to determine how to change our product.

5. What would you like to learn more about or do in the future regarding PBL?*

- Seeing examples of how lessons throughout the unit explicitly connect to the final project. We struggled a bit with how much guidance to give throughout.
