All emerging leaders are enrolled in the program for two years and help shape education policy, advocate for the whole child, and explore multiple ASCD leadership pathways. Some alumni from the program—including Steven Anderson, Starr Sackstein, Tony Frontier, and Pete Hall—have become ASCD authors, while others have become ASCD Faculty members and Board members. While in the program, educators can take advantage of numerous opportunities such as:

- Attending the invitation-only Leader to Leader conference in November, where leaders of various ASCD constituent groups convene to learn, share, and lay the groundwork for further collaboration.
- Presenting at ASCD conferences and events.

- Writing for ASCD publications, including the Inservice blog, and contributing written pieces to other outlets.
- Hosting episodes of ASCD Learn. Teach. Lead. Radio, a weekly program produced in partnership with BAM! Radio Network.

The entire list of the past emerging leaders is available in our Emerging Leaders Directory.
