

Angie Withers

Angie Withers is a school psychologist working in the Richland School District. Prior to earning her school psychology degree, she worked in community mental health as a case manager in the clinical, home and community settings. She has participated as a research assistant for projects including the effects of stress on physiological response and cardiac health, as well as identifying needed community and school supports for foster children. She currently holds an Educational Specialist degree in School Psychology and is a Nationally Certified School Psychologist.