

Barb Lark

Barb Lark is an Assistive Technology Specialist for the Washington State Special Education Technology Center (SETC). Barb has worked in the public school setting for over 35 years. She has a Master's degree in Speech Pathology and holds a RESNA Assistive Technology Practitioner certificate, as well as the American Speech and Hearing Association Certificate of Clinical Competence. Her particular interests and skills are in the areas of Augmentative & Alternative Communication (AAC) and in the development of curriculum support materials using multimedia-rich software. She has spoken at conferences and workshops in the state, region and nationally on topics related to Assistive Technology.